

Act 1

Narrator: Far back in the time of the Old Testament there was a king named Ahasuerus. King Ahasuerus was a rich and powerful man and in the third year of his reign he had a great feast and invited many princes and noblemen to come.

Ahasuerus: Are you enjoying your meal? Is this not a great feast that I have put on?

Man 1: The best feast ever. We have eaten for seven days.

Man 2: We must remember our manners and thank our hostess too.

Man 1: You are not from around here. Here a woman receives no thanks.

Man 2: I suppose that you are right. She has not even shown her face at the party anyway. It actually seems sort of rude that she hasn't been around.

Man 1: Women don't come to parties such as these.

Man 2: This is a strange place in which you live. In my city we have many beautiful women and they are equal to men.

Ahasuerus: My wife is a beautiful woman. She is my treasure, not my equal.

Man 1: See, the king treats his wife. That is why a woman should be treated.

Man 2: I think I get it now. So he treats a beautiful woman and he gets the thanks for all this great food? Kind of old fashioned but very cool!

Man 1: King Ahasuerus you must forgive my friend. He is visiting from a faraway land. I'm sure your wife is a beautiful woman; perhaps the most beautiful in the land.

Ahasuerus: Would you like to see her?

Man 2: Sure. I'd like more of this meat stuff too.

Man 1: Excuse my friend again. He is rude. Of course we would like to see your beautiful wife, if it pleases you to show her off?

Ahasuerus: I would love to show her off too. I have sent for her.

Man 2: Cool. Will she bring out more food?
