

Supply Chain Management Market and Vendor Guide, 2010

Published: 8 December 2010

Analyst(s): C. Dwight Klappich, Greg Aimi, Tim Payne, William McNell, Tim Zimmerman, Chad Eschinger

The poor global economic climate is exerting pressure on supply chain management (SCM) professionals to focus efforts and investments on initiatives aimed at reducing — or, ideally, optimizing — costs and improving customer service. The SCM applications covered in this research remain a source of needed investment.

Key Findings

- The SCM application market remains diverse, with large-scale suite providers offering portfolios of solutions, niche providers specializing in particular areas and innovative companies bringing new, value-added capabilities to market.
- Although mature in some areas, the SCM application market remains a source of innovation. New capabilities continue emerging to solve new problems or provide more sources of business value.
- Gartner finds an emerging trend toward convergence of traditional application functional silos, so that users can better support end-to-end business processes.
- New deployment models — most notably, software as a service (SaaS) and cloud — are gaining traction, fueled primarily by the poor economic climate, which makes large capital expenditures difficult for many organizations.

Recommendations

- Consider new sourcing options, such as SaaS or managed services, to gain the benefits of incrementally improved capabilities without the traditionally large upfront costs of on-premises applications.
- Explore buyer-favorable financing options that will likely be coming from software vendors in response to the economic climate.
- Focus as much attention on a vendor's ability to help your company exploit a given application through the vendor's functional expertise, services and support.
