Ratcliffe,2007-09-06 1 1 FOLK PSYCHOLOGY THEORY OF MIND AND SIMULATION The tasks we face in our day to day social lives are quite heterogeneous but many of them make a common demand upon us They require us to understand and interact with other people and in most social encounters we exhibit a special sensitivity to our fellow human beings that is quite different from the way we respond to inanimate objects and most other species of organism Social life is dependent to a considerable degree on our ability to understand what is distinctive about human behaviour and to successfully apply that understanding in all manner of situations What is central to our ability to interpret one another A great deal of work in philosophy of mind cognitive science anthropology developmental psychology and a host of other disciplines assumes that at root interpersonal interpretation is accomplished through the employment of a commonsense or folk psychology meaning an everyday rather than scientific appreciation of mindedness Although there is considerable debate over which cognitive processes support our folk psychological abilities and how those abilities develop during childhood there is a remarkable degree of consensus concerning what folk psychology consists of Almost all discussions of the topic begin by stating or presupposing that it is the ability to attribute intentional states principally beliefs and desires to other people and perhaps also to oneself in order to predict and explain behaviour
