Technology and Assessment National Research Council,Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education,Center for Education,Board on Testing and Assessment,2002-03-26 The papers in this collection were commissioned by the Board on Testing and Assessment BOTA of the National Research Council NRC for a workshop held on November 14 2001 with support from the William and Flora Hewlett Foundation Goals for the workshop were twofold One was to share the major messages of the recently released NRC committee report Knowing What Students Know The Science and Design of Educational Assessment 2001 which synthesizes advances in the cognitive sciences and methods of measurement and considers their implications for improving educational assessment The second goal was to delve more deeply into one of the major themes of that report the role that technology could play in bringing those advances together which is the focus of these papers For the workshop selected researchers working in the intersection of technology and assessment were asked to write about some of the challenges and opportunities for more fully capitalizing on the power of information technologies to improve assessment to illustrate those issues with examples from their own research and to identify priorities for research and development in this area

The Seattle Educational Bulletin ,1925 Theory of Mind in Relation to Other Cognitive Abilities, volume II Ann Dowker,Douglas Frye,2025-08-11 This Research Topic is the second volume of the Research Topic Theory of Mind in Relation to Other Cognitive Abilities Please see the first volume here

Theory of mind and its development have been subjects of much research over the last 40 years. It is generally thought to be very important in cognitive and social development. However, there is still much debate as to how it should be defined and even as to whether it is a single entity. In particular, there is controversy as to the extent to which it should be seen as a specific cognitive module or rather as dependent on or mutually developing with other cognitive abilities and characteristics such as language, metacognition, executive function, and cognitive and perceptual styles that emphasize gist versus detail, strong versus weak central coherence. It is also possible that the theory of mind itself has several different components which may be related to different degrees, different cognitive abilities and characteristics. Any relationships between the theory of mind and other cognitive characteristics may also vary with age and may differ between typically developing children and those with autism and other atypical conditions. Gaining a greater understanding of these issues is important to increasing our understanding of theory of mind itself, the nature of cognitive development, the similarities and differences between typically and atypically developing children, and whether it may be possible to devise interventions to improve theory of mind either directly or by means of improving other abilities. The goal of the current Research Topic is to bring together articles on various aspects of the theory of mind and any concurrent and longitudinal relationships to other cognitive abilities and characteristics. These articles may involve studies of children, adults, or both. It is expected that they will primarily include empirical research papers, but theoretical articles, literature reviews, and meta-analyses are also welcome.

Pencils Down Wayne Au, Melissa Bollow Tempel, 2012 This powerful collection from the groundbreaking Rethinking Schools magazine takes high-stakes standardized tests to task. Despite overwhelming evidence that the tests are invalid ways to measure teaching and learning, and continuing signs of their unjust effects on students and teachers, reformers and policymakers continue to force high-stakes tests into the public schools. Through articles that provide thoughtful and emotional critiques from the frontlines of education, Pencils Down deconstructs the damage that standardized tests wreak on our education system and the human beings that populate it. Better yet, it offers visionary forms of assessment that are not only more authentic but also more
