This collection showcases the high quality work of internationally recognized researchers in the early stages of their independent careers. All Rising Star researchers were individually nominated by the Chief Editors of the Journal in recognition of their potential to influence the future directions in their respective fields. The work presented here highlights the diversity of research performed across the entire breadth of cardiovascular medicine including the elucidation of fundamental biology, the development of novel diagnostics or therapeutics, computational modelling approaches and bioengineering strategies for regeneration.

Surgical Management of Colorectal Pathologies Peter C. Ambe, Selman Sokmen, Michail Karanikas, 2025-05-13 Colorectal surgery encompasses the diagnosis and management of disorders of the lower gastrointestinal tract (GIT) and secondary organs. Our knowledge on both benign and malignant diseases is constantly evolving and the complexity of many disorders in the lower gastrointestinal tract warrants a multidisciplinary approach to achieve the best possible outcome for our patients. Keeping with an evolving field with regard to advancements in diagnosis, management and follow up is of paramount importance in providing up to date patient care. This implies that there is need of a continuous update of medical literature. It is therefore our belief that care providers in every discipline should contribute to maintaining and updating the medical literature in their respective field of expertise. Contributing to medical literature is the first step in creating medical evidence. This in our eyes should not be a privilege reserved for selected experts. With this in mind we are inviting you to participate in the upcoming special issue on colorectal surgery.
