All Possible Questions and Answers

with complete solution

Assuming a perfectly efficient debt market, what would be the forward rate during year 6, given the following current spot rates?

Year: 1 2 3 4 5 6

Spot rate: .08 .085 .09 .095 .10 .105 - $((1+r_6)^6 / (1+r_5)^5) - 1$

2. Explain why, in the absence of transactions costs that spot interest rates should be a geometric average of the imbedded forward interest rates. Explain why, in an efficient market, we would expect a "naïve" IRR or yield on a coupon bond to be a complex average of yield curve spot rates. - - Spot rates and forward rates are inherently contingent upon each other.

- You can use forward rates or spot rates to find the other or vice versa

- Therefore if there are no transaction costs forward rates will be the average of current spot rates

3. Van Order, in "Cracks in the Crystal Ball," expresses a widely held view among economists about forecasting interest rates: "...forecasting interest rates is both next to impossible and very dangerous." He concludes by stating that he is "foreswearing financial forecasting, except for forecasts that are provided by the market..." Explain what forecast methods he considers valid, and what he believes they are useful for, given that they "cannot make money." - Best Methods:

1) Today's price is a good indicator of tomorrow's price

2) The yield curve provides a forecast

a) can more accurately predict short and medium term rates compared to long term rates

4. In the following model, find the value of the bond, with call and without. Find the value to an investor (lender) if there is a 2 percent refinancing cost, paid to third parties.

Initial interest rate: 11 percent

Change in interest rate per period: +/- 200 Basis Points

Bond coupon: $10

Par value: $100

Years remaining to maturity: 3 Years - Check Excel

5. For the problem above, compute the yield spread between non-callable and callable (without refinancing fee). Suppose the callable bond is trading at a yield 100 basis

Frontiers in Psychiatry Yong-Ku Kim, 2019-11-09

This book reviews key recent advances and new frontiers within psychiatric research and clinical practice. These advances either represent or are enabling paradigm shifts in the discipline and are influencing how we observe, derive and test hypotheses and intervene. Progress in information technology is allowing the collection of scattered fragmented data and the discovery of hidden meanings from stored data and the impacts on psychiatry are fully explored. Detailed attention is also paid to the applications of artificial intelligence, machine learning and data science technology in psychiatry and to their role in the development of new hypotheses which in turn promise to lead to new discoveries and treatments. Emerging research methods for precision medicine are discussed as are a variety of novel theoretical frameworks for research such as theoretical psychiatry, the developmental approach to the definition of psychopathology and the theory of constructed emotion. The concluding section considers novel interventions and treatment avenues including psychobiotics, the use of neuromodulation to augment cognitive control of emotion and the role of the telomere/telomerase system in

Stroke in the Older Person Sunil K. Munshi, Rowan Harwood, 2020-01-09 Stroke is a condition that predominantly affects older people, often leading to death, disability and dependency as well as occupancy of hospital and nursing home beds. Older stroke patients are similar in many ways to their younger counterparts but at the same time exhibit several key differences. Their outcome and care are complicated by delayed diagnosis, polypharmacy, difficult rehabilitation, ageism, false assumptions of poor outcome, multiple co-morbidity, social issues including implications for independent living, ethical dilemmas and many others. The proportion of older people is increasing every day and with it the burden of disease and disability. The implications
