Crezee, Nawar Gailani, Anna N. Gailani, 2016-12-08 Arabic is a language of substantial cultural and religious importance It is spoken by about 300 million people predominantly in the 22 countries of the Arab world as well as in several other regions where the Arab diaspora has settled Arabic is also the language of Islam and underpins the religious practice of about 1.5 billion Muslims worldwide In view of the above the authors thought it important to create an easily accessible handbook for interpreters translators educators and other practitioners working between Arabic and English in healthcare settings Introduction to Healthcare for Arabic speaking Interpreters and Translators follows the seminal publication Introduction to Healthcare for Interpreters and Translators Crezee 2013 and has been supplemented with Arabic glossaries and comments about health communication between Anglophones and Arabic speakers This practical resource book will help inform interpreters and translators about healthcare settings anatomy physiology medical terminology and frequently encountered conditions diagnostic tests and treatment options Arabic is divided into two categories formal Classical Standard or literary Arabic and local dialects colloquial Arabic Formal Arabic is the official language of all Arab countries In each of these there are regional dialects which color formal Arabic and add character to a poetic and expressive language Poetic nature is found in many daily expressions and not only in Arabic literature for example Good morning in Arabic is Ssabah al khair which in essence wishes others a morning of goodness and the pan Arab greeting Salam Alaykum which literally means may peace be upon you Dialects once existed principally in spoken form but these days they are increasingly used in writing in social media and its paraphernalia mobile phones tablets etc In this book formal Arabic is used in the glossaries simply because it is the recognized language of literacy across the Arabic speaking world

Working with Interpreters and Translators

Henriette W. Langdon, Terry Irvine Saenz, 2015-10-15 Working with Interpreters and Translators A Guide for Speech Language Pathologists and Audiologists offers state of the art procedures to conduct interviews assessments and conferences with students with limited English language proficiency and their families As no research base is available in the field of communicative disorders on this specific topic the information presented in this guide is supported by a critical review of the literature on best practices in interpreting for international conferences and legal and medical fields Furthermore the authors experience working with language interpreters and training professionals as well as graduate students in communicative disorders makes this a very valuable resource for professionals interpreters translators as well as undergraduate and graduate students Federal and state laws specify that if necessary English language learners ELL need to be assessed in their native language when referred for possible special education The number of ELL students attending public schools across the nation has increased in the past few decades There are not enough speech language pathologists SLPs or audiologists who are proficient in the various languages spoken by ELL students even in Spanish the most common language spoken by ELL students in the United States The next best solution is to conduct assessments in collaboration with a trained interpreter translator Key features include Information and references for the most common languages spoken by ELL students Discussion of culturally based variables that need to be considered in the process of interviewing and working with linguistically and culturally diverse populations Description of the roles and responsibilities for individuals who will be collaborating as interpreters and translators with SLPs and audiologists in various contexts such as interviews assessments and various meetings such as IEPs and IFSPs as well as suggestions on training individuals in this collaborative process Review of best practices in speech language and audiological assessments both with and without materials in the given language Disclaimer Please note that ancillary content such documents audio and video may not be included as published in the original print version of this book Working with Interpreters and Translators A Guide for Speech Language Pathologists and Audiologists is a must have reference for anyone working with ELL students Although the process was developed with the pediatric population in mind much of this information can be applied to older culturally and linguistically diverse populations in need of speech language and or hearing services It will also be useful to professionals working with language interpreters in allied health professions in other countries Resources in Education ,1991 Multilingual ,2007
