

Two Ways Students Can Present the Final Product:

1. One way students can present the final product is for them to write down their narration. Students will be given a guided sheet and they will write down details about their topic.
 - a. ISP/50-6: These students will write down fewer key details than other students.
 - b. Struggling Reader: These students will complete this assignment the same as the rest of the class.
 - c. Gifted: These students will structure their narration sheet into how they will structure their essays.
2. One way students can present the final product is to do a peer reading/reviewing. Students will write down glows, grows, and tips on their peers' writing. This will be submitted to the teacher.
 - a. ISP and 50-6/ Struggling Reader: These students will write down one thing they thought their peers did well and one thing they think they can improve on.
 - b. Gifted: These students will write their Glows/Grows/Tips in paragraph form.

2. Knows systematic, explicit methods to teach the steps of the writing process to all learners

Definitions:

1. Systematic methods of writing: a process that involves at least four distinct steps: prewriting, drafting, revising, and editing
2. Explicit methods of writing: a process that involves a clear idea formed in the essay.

Examples:

1. Systematic methods of writing: the normal steps you take to write an essay.
2. Explicit methods of writing: the steps you take to collect information on your text to make it understandable.
