Each component part of a machine has a reference number. The reference number for a specific component is printed on, along with other information about the part.

The catalog uses two numbering systems. Reference numbers are used to identify a specific assembly and variations include the quantity of a component or material.

Machine Assembly Reference Numbers:

Each machine assembly has reference numbers in the form 2-1. The 2 represents the machine number in the entire machine assembly and the 1 represents a specific number within a specific assembly or sub-assembly.

For example, a wheel assembly might be identified by reference number 2-10. The 2 is the machine number, and the 10 is the wheel assembly number. When you order the wheel assembly, you must specify the machine number 2-10. If you order a wheel assembly for a machine with reference number 2-10, you will receive the wheel assembly for that machine. If you order a wheel assembly for a machine with reference number 2-11, you will receive the wheel assembly for that machine.

Reference Numbers Including Quantity:

When a machine has a reference number including quantity, the quantity is shown in parentheses after the reference number. For example, the reference number 2-10 (2) indicates that two of the wheel assemblies are required for the machine.

For example, a wheel assembly might be identified by reference number 2-10 (2). The 2 is the machine number, and the 10 is the wheel assembly number. When you order the wheel assembly, you must specify the machine number 2-10 (2).
