Scott, Barbara Purdum-Cassidy, 2016-08-17 The nation's demographic of public schools are more ethnically racially and linguistically diverse than ever before Strauss 2014 However there are still educational policies and practices that call to question whether traditionally marginalized students receive an equitable education This is demonstrated in national achievement trends which highlight disproportionality ratings among minoritized student groups Also when examining school discipline policies expulsion ratings special education services and school choice movements all seem to handicap educational opportunity for low income Black and Brown students As American schools become more and more diverse it is imperative that the literacy practices used to teach young students of color reflect the nation's changing demographic This book provides practical insights guided by conceptual and contextual knowledge in understanding how to teach urban African American and Hispanic Latino students by discussing issues associated with critical pedagogies literacy and culturally appropriate instructional strategies that have demonstrated success for traditionally marginalized student populations This book examines culturally affirming literacy practices from three main components 1 scholarship 2 the field of practice and 3 teacher education models Each of these three are significant in understanding how to teach minoritized populations As such chapters have been organized into three main sections that address scholarship and research trends in the field and implications for teacher education models all in order to advance the literacy achievement of African American and Hispanic Latino students

Harris, 2013-12-16 This special issue of the Peabody Journal of Education provides a comprehensive overview of the latest developments in peace education reform School reforms based upon principles of peace education have in common a belief in the power of peace to create a positive learning climate in schools and to address the problems of violence in the broader culture A peace education strategy for improving school productivity rests upon three main assumptions 1 Violence contributes to the poor performance of many students 2 Adults in school settings need to address problems created by violence in order for schools to improve 3 Anxieties that make it hard for students to master traditional subject matter can best be addressed by a comprehensive peace education strategy that makes school a safe place to learn and provides students with knowledge about alternative nonviolent ways to resolve conflicts Peace building reforms go beyond responding to immediate forms of violence that may be overwhelming students and teachers to promoting positive images of peace through the study of nonviolence Written by established experts in the field of peace education from six different countries this collection of articles not only represents a wide variety of peace education practices from different corners of the globe but it also represents varying academic perspectives Educators can play a key role in helping human societies progress toward more sustainable ways of living by implementing peacemaking peacekeeping and peace building strategies in school programs Peace education reforms point to a new way of thinking about schools as vehicles for promoting a peace culture through insights offered by nonviolent theory
