Crops absorb the nutrients required from soil in order to grow; so ensuring that your soil is meeting the crops' needs is critical. Having the proper level of nutrients in the soil will help to produce optimum quality yields. Testing your soil at least every three years, if not annually, is the best way to determine if your soil is in the ideal condition for your crop.

Laboratory Services tests soil samples to determine how effectively the soil can grow the crop. By measuring the soil's pH level and plant-available nutrients, lime and fertilizer recommendations can be given. Specific crops require specific nutrient levels.

The soil test is divided into four main sections, as shown on the Sample Soil Test Report. These are

- information on client, sample and field
- results of soil test
- interpretation ratings for nutrient levels
- recommendations for lime and fertilizer applications
