Students will learn about characteristics that define tribes including: language, religion, roles in the community, art, music, etc. Students will need to create defining characteristics for their tribe, and include it on the Museum Box.

Science Activity Summary: Demonstrate how to create Punnett squares. Use Punnett squares and probability to create a member from a tribe. Use characteristics such as eye color, earlobes (attached/detached), complexion, sickle cell, widow's peak, blood type, etc. This person is then to be drawn and added as a member of each tribe. This drawing will be scanned and uploaded to the group Museum Box.
