

Using Anatomical Language

HASPI Medical Anatomy & Physiology 01a
Internet Activity

Background

"Anatomy is the foundation of medicine and should be based on the form of the human body." Hippocrates

Anatomy is the study of the structures of the human body, while physiology is the study of the functions of these structures. A solid understanding of both is crucial for effective medicine and patient care. In addition to knowing anatomy & physiology, it is also important to be able to speak a common language among healthcare professionals. There are times that a physician, nurse, or therapist must document in medical records or communicate to other healthcare workers about the condition and/or treatment of a patient. In order to avoid confusion, standard anatomical terms are used to describe positions and reference points on the human body. This activity will be an introduction and review of common anatomical language used to describe relative positions, body sections, and body regions that communicate information about patients effectively in the healthcare field.

Rorty, Religion, and Metaphysics John Owens, 2019-09-05 Believing that humanity would be better off if it simply dropped its traditional religious and metaphysical beliefs Richard Rorty proposes an alternative approach drawn from the American pragmatist tradition where things get their significance against a background of broad human interests and knowledge is regarded as part of the active pursuit of a better world Rorty Religion and Metaphysics argues that while Rorty's case is clearly and robustly made it is fundamentally challenged by the phenomenon of human recognition the relationship that arises between people when they talk to one another John Owens demonstrates that recognition so central to human life cannot be accommodated within Rorty's proposals given that it precisely attributes a reality to others that goes beyond anything a pragmatist framework can offer It follows that there is more to human interaction than can be explained by Rorty's pragmatism
