The following figure shows the relationship between the number of nodes in the network and the average node degree. The results show that as the number of nodes increases, the average node degree decreases, which is consistent with the expected behavior of a random graph.

Any intervention strategy which minimizes unnecessary or repeated use of antibiotics by reducing antibiotic resistance rates will contribute to improving antibiotic use in medical settings. Standard antibiotic resistance testing has been performed for three different groups of hospitalized patients, adult surgical admissions. Adult surgical admissions were taken from two different hospitals, one teaching hospital and one non-teaching hospital.

However, some regions are considerably more contiguous than the ones having no neighbor-regions connection. Every element has at least one neighbor. Some neighbor nodes may have connections to three or four other nodes. These nodes represent as general neighbors of the network, as complete stars nodes. Furthermore, highly connected nodes are called hubs, while low degree nodes are called leaves. The hub-and-spoke structure is a common topology used in the Internet. The range for the path between the neighbor nodes can be as follows: 1-2, 2-3, 3-4, 4-5, 5-6, 6-7, 7-8, 8-9, 9-10, 10-11, 11-12, 12-13, 13-14, 14-15, 15-16, 16-17, 17-18, 18-19, 19-20, 20-21, 21-22,
