Spelling Gr. 6 A Complete Strategy Based Program , Learning to Read and Write Margaret Harris,Giyoo Hatano,1999-05-27 For many years the development of theories about the way children learn to read and write was dominated by studies of English speaking populations As we have learned more about the way that children learn to read and write other scripts whether they have less regularity in their grapheme phoneme correspondences or do not make use of alphabetic symbols at all it has become clear that many of the difficulties that confront children learning to read and write English specifically are less evident or even non existent in other populations At the same time some aspects of learning to read and write are very similar across scripts The unique cross linguistic perspective offered in this book including chapters on Japanese Greek and the Scandinavian languages as well as English shows how the processes of learning to read and spell are affected by the characteristics of the writing system that children are learning to master

Preface A Model for Personality H.J. Eysenck, 2012-12-06 H J Eysenck This book is not an introduction to personality research it is not a textbook and above all it is not a model of personality The title A Model for Personality was chosen on purpose to indicate that we are here concerned with a discussion of how models in this field ought to be constructed what their functions were and whether such models or paradigms could with advantage be produced at this stage of development One particular aspect of personality extraversion introversion E has been chosen to exemplify the desiderata which emerge from such a discussion It is not suggested that personality and E are synonymous merely that this particular dimension is perhaps better known than any other has had more experimental work done on it than any other and has acquired a better theoretical substructure and more links with genetics and physiology than any other Hence it seems most likely to serve as an example of how a satisfactory model of personality might ultimately be constructed i e by analogy with E Other dimensions of personality such as neuroticism stability or psychotism superego functioning are mentioned in the discussion but only when they overlap or interrelate with E The book uses E as an example to illustrate the way in which a model of personality can be constructed but it is in no way a summary of all that is known about E

Sound perception and production in a foreign language Nimz, Katharina, 2016-04-13 The present study addresses the question of how German vowels are perceived and produced by Polish learners of German as a Foreign Language It comprises three main experiments a discrimination experiment a production experiment and an identification experiment With the exception of the discrimination task the experiments further investigated the influence of orthographic marking on the perception and production of German vowel length It was assumed that explicit markings such as the Dehnungs h lengthening h could help Polish GFL learners in perceiving and producing German words more correctly The discrimination experiment with manipulated nonce words showed that Polish GFL learners detect pure length differences in German vowels less accurately than German native speakers while this was not the case for pure quality differences The results of the identification experiment contrast with the results of the discrimination task in that Polish GFL learners were better at judging incorrect vowel length than incorrect vowel quality in manipulated real words However orthographic marking did not turn out to be the driving factor and it is suggested that metalinguistic awareness can explain the asymmetry between the two perception experiments The production experiment supported the results of the identification task in that lengthening h did not help Polish learners in producing German vowel length more correctly Yet as far as vowel quality productions are concerned it is argued that orthography does influence L2 sound productions because Polish learners seem to be negatively influenced by their native grapheme to phoneme correspondences It is concluded that it is important to differentiate between the influence of the L1 and L2 orthographic system On the one hand the investigation of the influence of orthographic vowel length markers in German suggests that Polish GFL learners do not make use of length information provided by the L2 orthographic system On the other hand the vowel quality data suggest that the L1 orthographic system plays a crucial role in the acquisition of a foreign language It is therefore proposed that orthography influences the acquisition of foreign sounds but not in the way it was originally assumed

English with a Latin Beat Barbara O. Baptista, Michael Alan Watkins, 2006-12-14 Although it has long been recognized that second language pronunciation is strongly influenced by the native language second language phonology has only become a recognized area of study during the last thirty years While English has been the most frequent target language involved the learners L1s have varied greatly This is the first collection to gather together studies involving English learners whose L1 is Spanish or Brazilian Portuguese two closely related languages with important phonological differences The research covers vowel perception and production syllable simplification strategies word and compound stress and vowel reduction While the papers confirm the important role of the native language they also shed light on the sometimes subtle and unexpected ways in which this variable interacts with universal markedness relationships to determine the formation of phonetic categories and their use in perception and production These eleven carefully conducted empirical studies will provide insights for practitioners and stimulate further research
