There are some more important points regarding this issue: one breast feeding the newborn for three weeks has been the minimum time. In the case, the girl probably started her menstruation at that time. It has been noted that breast-feeding generally in the first three months prevents some breast engorgement before the mother's breasts become fully milked. However, it is not clear if this is the case in this situation. The mother's breasts were not fully milked, and the girl's menstruation started at that time. The mother's breasts were not fully milked, and the girl's menstruation started at that time. The mother's breasts were not fully milked, and the girl's menstruation started at that time.
