The Billboard ,1927 Regulation of Endurance Performance: New Frontiers Alexis R. Mauger,Florentina J. Hettinga,Dominic P. Micklewright,Andrew Renfree,Benjamin Pageaux,Hollie S. Jones,Jo Corbett,2017-11-22 Successful endurance performance requires the integration of multiple physiological and psychological systems working together to regulate exercise intensity in a way that will reduce time taken or increase work done The systems that ultimately limit performance of the task are hotly contested and may depend on a variety of factors including the type of task the environment external influences training status of the individual and a host of psychological constructs These factors can be studied in isolation or inclusively as a whole body or integrative system A reductionist approach has traditionally been favoured leading to a greater understanding and emphasis on muscle and cardiovascular physiology but the role of the brain and how this integrates multiple systems is gaining momentum However these differing approaches may have led to false dichotomy and now with better understanding of both fields there is a need to bring these perspectives together The divergent viewpoints of the limitations to human performance may have partly arisen because of the different exercise models studied These can broadly be defined as open loop where a fixed intensity is maintained until task disengagement or closed loop where a fixed distance is completed in the fastest time which may involve whole body or single limb exercise Closed loop exercise allows an analysis of how exercise intensity is self regulated i e pacing and thus may better reflect the demands of competitive endurance performance However whilst this model can monitor changes in pacing this is often at the expense of detecting subtle differences in the measured physiological or psychological variables of interest Open loop exercise solves this issue but is limited by its more restrictive exercise model Nonetheless much can be learnt from both experimental approaches when these constraints are recognised Indeed both models appear equally effective in examining changes in performance and so the researcher should select the exercise model which can most appropriately test the study hypothesis Given that a multitude of both internal e g muscle fatigue perception of effort dietary intervention pain etc and

external e.g. opponents, crowd presence, course topography, extrinsic reward etc. factors likely contribute to exercise regulation and endurance performance. It may be that both models are required to gain a comprehensive understanding. Consequently, this research topic seeks to bring together papers on endurance performance from a variety of paradigms and exercise models with the overarching aim of comparing, examining, and integrating their findings to better understand how exercise is regulated and how this may or may not limit performance.

The Caesars Palace Coup Max Frumes, Sujeet Indap, 2021-03-16 It was the most brutal corporate restructuring in Wall Street history. The 2015 bankruptcy brawl for the storied casino giant Caesars Entertainment pitted brilliant and ruthless private equity legends against the world's most relentless hedge fund wizards. In the tradition of Barbarians at the Gate and The Big Short comes the riveting multi-dimensional poker game between private equity firms and distressed debt hedge funds that played out from the Vegas Strip to Manhattan boardrooms to Chicago courthouses and even for a moment the halls of the United States Congress. On one side Apollo Global Management and TPG Capital. On the other the likes of Elliott Management, Oaktree Capital, and Appaloosa Management. The Caesars bankruptcy put a twist on the old-fashioned casino heist. Through a $27 billion leveraged buyout and a dizzying string of financial engineering transactions, Apollo and TPG, in the midst of the post-Great Recession slump, had seemingly snatched every prime asset of the company from creditors with the notable exception of Caesars Palace. But Caesars hedge fund lenders and bondholders had scooped up the company's paper for nickels and dimes. And with their own armies of lawyers and bankers, they were ready to do everything necessary to take back what they believed was theirs if they could just stop their own infighting. These modern financiers now dominate the scene in Corporate America as their fight to the death mentality continues to shock workers, politicians, and broader society and even each other. In The Caesars Palace Coup, financial journalists Max Frumes and Sujeet Indap illuminate the brutal tactics of distressed debt mavens and vultures as they are condemned in the sale and purchase of even the biggest companies in the world with billions of dollars hanging in the balance.
