Lessons for the Social Studies Classroom M. Lazarus, S. Cohen, K. Lambert, R. E, 2013-03-12 The idea for this book came while I was observing a student teacher and a master teacher I realized that most student teachers while in training do not have the opportunity to think creatively about their lessons I also noticed that teachers new to the field of teaching suffer the same fate they are too busy trying to survive the day and are not sure how to plan and organize their teaching Lesson plans are one of the most important tools for a teacher and more important for the novice teacher I believe that during student teaching or during their undergraduate years if students were equipped with this book their first year teaching will not look so first year Imagine an undergraduate class filled with soon to be Social Studies teachers discussing these selected lesson plans improving upon them and making them their own Most first year teachers over teach or under teach and both types still miss the marks on the standardized test These lesson plans will give the new teacher a place to begin

High-Stakes Testing in Education Theo J.H.M Eggen,Gordon Stobart,2015-10-14 High stakes educational testing is a global phenomenon which is increasing in both scale and importance Assessments are high stakes when there are serious consequences for one or more stakeholders Historically tests have largely been used for selection or for providing a licence to practise making them high stakes for the test takers Testing is now also used for the purposes of improving standards of teaching and learning and of holding schools accountable for their students results These tests then become high stakes for teachers and schools especially when they have to meet externally imposed targets More recent has been the emergence of international comparative testing which has become high stakes for governments and policy makers as their education systems are judged in relation to the performances of other countries In this book we draw on research which examines each of these uses of high stakes testing The articles evaluate the impact of such assessments and explore the issues of value and fairness which they raise To underline the international appeal of high stakes testing the studies are drawn from Australia

Africa the Caribbean Europe former Soviet republics and North America Collectively they illustrate the power of high stakes assessment in shaping for better or for worse policy making and schooling This book was originally published as a special issue of Assessment in Education Principles Policy Practice Sat Subject Test - Chemistry Kevin R. E M Teaching History for the Common Good Keith C. Barton, Linda S. Levstik, 2004-07-13 In Teaching History for the Common Good Barton and Levstik present a clear overview of competing ideas among educators historians politicians and the public about the nature and purpose of teaching history and they evaluate these debates in light of current research on students' historical thinking In many cases disagreements about what should be taught to the nation's children and how it should be presented reflect fundamental differences that will not easily be resolved A central premise of this book though is that systematic theory and research can play an important role in such debates by providing evidence of how students think how their ideas interact with the information they encounter both in school and out and how these ideas differ across contexts Such evidence is needed as an alternative to the untested assumptions that plague so many discussions of history education The authors review research on students' historical thinking and set it in the theoretical context of mediated action an approach that calls attention to the concrete actions that people undertake the human agents responsible for such actions the cultural tools that aid and constrain them their purposes and their social contexts They explain how this theory allows educators to address the breadth of practices settings purposes and tools that influence students' developing understanding of the past as well as how it provides an alternative to the academic discipline of history as a way of making decisions about teaching and learning the subject in schools Beyond simply describing the factors that influence students' thinking Barton and Levstik evaluate their implications for historical understanding and civic engagement They base these evaluations not on the disciplinary study of history but on the purpose of social education preparing students for participation in a pluralist democracy Their ultimate concern is how history can help citizens engage in collaboration toward the common good In Teaching History for the Common Good Barton and Levstik discuss the contribution of theory and research explain the theory of mediated action and how it guides their analysis and describe research on children's and adults' knowledge of and interest in history lay out a vision of pluralist participatory democracy and its relationship to the humanistic study of history as a basis for evaluating the perspectives on the past that influence students' learning explore four principal stances toward history identification analysis moral response and exhibition review research on the extent to which children and adolescents understand and accept each of these and examine how the stances might contribute to or detract from participation in a pluralist democracy address six of the principal tools of history narrative structure stories of individual achievement and motivation national narratives inquiry empathy as perspective taking and empathy as caring and review research and conventional wisdom on teachers knowledge and practice and argue that for teachers to embrace investigative multi perspectival approaches to history they need more than knowledge of content and pedagogy they need a guiding purpose that can be fulfilled only by these approaches and preparation for participatory democracy provides such purpose Teaching History for the Common Good is essential reading for history and social studies professionals researchers teacher educators and students as well as for policymakers parents and members of the general public who are interested in history education or in students thinking and learning about the subject
