PARTICLE THEORY AND STATES OF MATTER

What is the theory of particles? Understanding the nature of matter and the arrangement of particles is the basis of the particle theory. The particle theory is based on the following points:

Particle Theory

1. Matter is made up of tiny particles. These particles are atoms and molecules. The arrangement of particles in matter is called its structure. The structure of matter is determined by the nature of the particles and the forces between them.

States of Matter

2. Matter can exist in three states: solid, liquid, and gas. The particles in matter are arranged in different ways in these three states. In solids, the particles are packed closely together. In liquids, they are more spread out. In gases, they are very far apart.

Changes of State

3. Matter can change from one state to another. This is called a change of state. The change of state is caused by a change in temperature or pressure. For example, ice melts to form water when the temperature rises.

Properties of Matter

4. Matter has certain properties. These are mass, volume, and density. Mass is the amount of matter in an object. Volume is the space occupied by an object. Density is the mass per unit volume.

Diffusion

5. Diffusion is the process by which particles move from an area of high concentration to an area of low concentration. This is caused by the random motion of particles.

Brownian Motion

6. Brownian motion is the random motion of particles suspended in a fluid. This is caused by the collisions between the particles and the molecules of the fluid.

10 Remember as you read the words in bold, think about what they mean. What do you think the words in bold mean? What do you think the words in bold mean?

9 What is the change of state called? What do you think the change of state is called?

8 What is the property of matter that determines the state of matter? What do you think the property of matter that determines the state of matter is?

7 What is the process by which particles move from an area of high concentration to an area of low concentration? What do you think the process is?
