World Religions and Multiculturalism, 2010-10-05 This book is about new forms of religiosity and religious activity emerging in the context of their dialectic relations with contemporary multicultural realities World religions are effectively a major agent of the multiculturalization of contemporary societies However multiculturalism pushes them not only toward change and reforms but also toward new conflicts between and within them This process should remind us of the Jewish legend of the Golem an animated being created by man which finally challenges the latter's control over it a dialectic relation indeed World religions today greatly contribute to a world disorder that is multicultural both when viewed as a whole and from within most societies that compose it It is a development that contrasts both with the assumption that globalization implies one way homogenization and convergence to Western modernity and the expectation that globalization would be bound to polarize homogeneous civilizations
