that AI may have a far more transformational impact on defense and security whereby new incarnations of armed force start doing different things in novel ways The report sketches a much broader option space within which defense and security organizations DSOs may wish to invest in successive generations of AI technologies It suggests that some of the most promising investment opportunities to start generating the sustainable security effects that our polities societies and economies expect may lie in the realms of prevention and resilience Also in those areas any large scale application of AI will have to result from a preliminary open minded on all sides public debate on its legal ethical and privacy implications The authors submit however that such a debate would be more fruitful than the current heated discussions about killer drones or robots Finally the study suggests that the advent of artificial super intelligence i e AI that is superior across the board to human intelligence which many experts now put firmly within the longer term planning horizons of our DSOs presents us with unprecedented risks but also opportunities that we have to start to explore The report contains an overview of the role that intelligence the computational part of the ability to achieve goals in the world has played in defense and security throughout human history a primer on AI what it is where it comes from and where it stands today in both civilian and military contexts a discussion of the broad option space for DSOs it opens up 12 illustrative use cases across that option space and a set of recommendations for especially small and medium sized defense and security organizations
