My belief about myself as a learner when I entered the class was a positive one. I attended a college prep school for high school and went to Oregon State University last year. I had plenty of practice with different learning techniques and found what works well for me. I believe I'm more of a visual learner than an auditory learner. It is easier to see a powerpoint and retain the knowledge then listen to a lecture and have the same retention. Entering the class I thought I liked working in groups more than working individually on projects, but that has since changed. I think it is more beneficial to me to work alone because I can get more done. When I entered the class I believed that reading the material closer to the due date was a better idea because I may not remember what I had read if I didn't.

What I have discovered about myself, as a learner over the term is vast. I learned that I can read the material way in advance and just briefly skim over the text and remember just about everything, were as I thought reading closer was more beneficial. I also learned that working in groups really isn't my specialty. I prefer working by myself because I'm able to get a lot more done and not have to worry about other people forgetting their part of the project. I don't like having to worry about other people not following through. I also learned that looking at the daily record in advanced helped me

Reconstructing Response to Student Writing Dan Melzer,2023-08-07 In Reconstructing Response to Student Writing Dan Melzer makes the argument that writing instructors should shift the construct so that peer response and student self assessment are more central than teacher response Presenting the results of a national study of teacher and peer response and student self assessment at institutions of higher education across the United States Melzer analyzes teacher and peer response to over 1 000 pieces of student writing as well as 128 student portfolio reflection essays He draws on his analysis and on a comprehensive review of the literature on response to introduce a constructivist heuristic for response aimed at both composition instructors and instructors across disciplines Melzer argues that teachers and researchers should focus less on teacher response to individual pieces of student writing and more on engaging in dialogue with student self assessment and peer response focusing on growth and transfer rather than products and grades Reconstructing Response to Student Writing especially when taken together with Melzer s previous book Assignments across the Curriculum provides a comprehensive and large scale view of college writing and responding across the curriculum in the United States

Transformative Experiences in College Neal

Christopherson, 2020-11-24 Transformative Experiences in College Connections and Community explores the intersection of two concepts transformative experience in college and the communities in which students learn Emerging from a five year longitudinal interview study tracking a panel of 75 students through four years at a selective liberal arts college this book provides a rich depiction of how aspects of the college community and the relationships developed within that community create opportunities for transformative experiences that lead to personal and academic growth Neal Christopherson argues that transformative experiences in college are primarily the results of interactions with other people and with a broader campus community documenting the ways in which relationships with faculty experiences in courses interaction with peers and the general institutional environment can generate these experiences Christopherson also touches on extracurricular and co curricular activities the importance of a healthy environment for interacting with difference and how students transition out of the institution Scholars of education sociology and communication will find this book particularly useful
