and Intervention Efficacy Christos Frantzidis, Ana B. Vivas, Panagiotis D. Bamidis, 2020-11-18 Previous studies showed that both healthy and pathological aging are associated with changes in brain structure and function of the mature human brain. The most prominent anatomical alterations are changes in prefrontal cortex morphology, volume loss and reduced white matter integrity and hippocampal atrophy. Cognitive decline affects mainly the performance of episodic memory, speed of sensory information processing, working memory, inhibitory function and long term memory. It has been also proposed that due to the aforementioned changes the aging brain engages in compensatory brain mechanisms such as a broader activation of cortical regions, mainly frontal rather than specialized activation. Evidence suggests that similar changes occur with pathological aging but to a greater extent. In this case, information flow is disrupted due to neurodegeneration; functional activation of posterior occipito-temporal regions is decreased and as a consequence the brain fails to process sensorial input in the ventral pathway and cognitive deficits appear. In the last years, functional alterations associated with aging have been studied using the mathematical notion of graph theory that offers an integrative approach since it examines different properties of the brain network: 1 Organization level, 2 amount of local information processing, 3 information flow, 4 cortical community structure and 5 identification of functional anatomical hubs. So graph theory offers an attractive way to model brain networks organization and to quantify their pathological deviations. Previous studies have already employed this mathematical notion and demonstrated that age-related neurodegeneration is often accompanied by loss of optimal network organization either due to diminished local information processing or due to progressive isolation of distant brain regions. They have also found that changes in network properties may be present even in the preclinical phase which could be taken as a biological marker of disease. Consumers Digest, 1989 The Monthly Magazine, 1798 Boletín de la librería, 1907 Journal of the American Medical Association, 1903 The Journal of the American Medical Association, 1903

Implementing Industry 4.0 Carlos Toro, Wei Wang, Humza Akhtar, 2021-04-03 This book relates research being implemented in three main research areas: secure connectivity and intelligent systems, real time analytics and manufacturing knowledge and virtual manufacturing. Manufacturing SMEs and MNCs want to see how Industry 4.0 is implemented. On the other hand, groundbreaking research on this topic is constantly growing. For the aforesaid reason, the Singapore Agency for Science, Technology and Research (A*STAR) has created the model factory initiative. In the model factory, manufacturers, technology providers and the broader industry can: i) learn how I4.0 technologies are implemented on real world manufacturing use cases; ii) test process improvements enabled by such technologies at the model factory facility without disrupting their own operations; iii) co-develop technology solutions; and iv) support the adoption of solutions at their everyday industrial operation. The book constitutes a clear base ground not only for inspiration of researchers but also for companies who will want to adopt smart manufacturing approaches coming from Industry 4.0 in their pathway to digitization.
