1. This assignment requires you to use the class methods provided.
2. A valid value should be 0.0, so please add a condition should the value be zero (0.0).
3. When using looping, use break before an else, not after.
4. When you use the functions for looping, do not use a variable to do anything, instead use the return value.
5. Remember, the function should return a value, not print it out. You should not have a variable that stores the return value of a function. If you are unsure what the return value of a function is, use the help function.
6. Remember, the function should return a value, not print it out. You should not have a variable that stores the return value of a function. If you are unsure what the return value of a function is, use the help function.
