Covering 2001 to today, Designing Retail Experience in the 21st Century presents readers with a critical cross disciplinary perspective on retail design, bringing together scholarship from design, architecture, branding, cultural studies and social studies. Our retail experience has changed profoundly over the past two decades, largely due to the impact of digital technologies. While the rise of smartphones and online commerce threatened to displace bricks and mortar stores, physical shopping has survived and in some cases thrived. Today the most successful brands design experiences that engage customers both within the physical store and in the digital realm. In this book, D.J. Huppertz analyses how corporations design these experiences, how we interact with them, and how they align with broader social, cultural and economic changes. Eight case studies reveal how some of the largest global retail chains, including Apple, Amazon, Nike, Zara, IKEA and LEGO, and smaller chains such as Aesop and Gentle Monster, utilize design to create engaging experiences. Unlike in the past, such corporations consider design in a continuum that extends from architecture and interiors to product and service design, and from website and digital interactions to social media At the intersection of design and cultural studies this book provides a critical survey and understanding of design and retail experience in the 21st century

International Labour Documentation ,1980-12 The National Provisioner ,1917 Manufacturing Suburbs Robert Lewis,2008 Urban historians have long portrayed suburbanization as the result of a bourgeois exodus from the city coupled with the introduction of streetcars that enabled the middle class to leave the city for the more sylvan surrounding regions Demonstrating that this is only a partial version of urban history Manufacturing Suburbs reclaims the history of working class suburbs by examining the development of industrial suburbs in the United States and Canada between 1850 and 1950 Contributors demonstrate that these suburbs developed in large part because of the location of manufacturing beyond city limits and the subsequent building of housing for the workers who labored within those factories Through case studies of industrial suburbanization and industrial suburbs in several metropolitan areas Chicago Baltimore Detroit Pittsburgh Los Angeles San Francisco Toronto and Montreal Manufacturing Suburbs sheds light on a key phenomenon of metropolitan development before the Second World War
