

A close-up photograph of a person's hands and face, focused on inspecting a small, cylindrical metal component. The person is wearing a large magnifying glass over their right eye and a black wristwatch on their left wrist. They are holding the component with both hands, and a small amount of liquid is being poured from a glass vial into it. A bright, focused light from a lamp is illuminating the work area, creating a strong shadow. In the background, several other similar metal components are visible, suggesting a production or inspection environment. A red, faceted geometric shape is visible in the upper right corner of the image.
