Lizards in an Evolutionary Tree Jonathan B. Losos, 2011-02-09 In a book both beautifully illustrated and deeply informative, Jonathan Losos, a leader in evolutionary ecology, celebrates and analyzes the diversity of the natural world that the fascinating anoline lizards epitomize. Readers who are drawn to nature by its beauty or its intellectual challenges or both will find his book rewarding.

Douglas J. Futuyma, State University of New York, Stony Brook. This book is destined to become a classic. It is scholarly, informative, stimulating, and highly readable and will inspire a generation of students.

Peter R. Grant, author of How and Why Species Multiply: The Radiation of Darwin's Finches. Anoline lizards experienced a spectacular adaptive radiation in the dynamic landscape of the Caribbean islands. The radiation has extended over a long period of time and has featured separate radiations on the larger islands. Losos, the leading active student of these lizards, presents an integrated and synthetic overview summarizing the enormous and multidimensional research literature. This engaging book makes a wonderful example of an adaptive radiation accessible to all, and the lavish illustrations, especially the photographs, make the anoles come alive in one's mind.

David Wake, University of California, Berkeley. This magnificent book is a celebration and synthesis of one of the most eventful adaptive radiations known. With disarming prose and personal narrative, Jonathan Losos shows how an obsession beginning at age ten became a methodology and a research plan that together with studies by colleagues and predecessors culminated in many of the principles we now regard as true about the origins and maintenance of biodiversity. This work combines rigorous analysis and glorious natural history in a unique volume that stands with books by the Grants on Darwin's finches among the most informed and engaging accounts ever written on the evolution of a group of organisms in nature.

Dolph Schluter, author of The Ecology of Adaptive Radiation.

25 Terrific Literature Activities Lori Licciardo-Musso, 1995 Easy motivating activities take students into, through, and beyond literature. Students will love and learn from these classroom-tested response projects. With rubrics for assessing written responses. For use with Grades 4-8.
