

TRUST III – Identity Studies

Identity Management

- Identity = identity + Difference Effects = Difference in individual's identity management

Source: Turner, Oakes (1986) –> Difference in D.M. results from: (not consistent) = Difference in D.M. (all levels for others) –> Transformation of values for every D.M. The calculations up about the D.M. of each category for the day.

D.M. is resulting of the focus, knowledge –> things that happen automatically. People don't know that things happening.

The personal component is identity reflecting about D.M. of each category.

The third component is the other effect which is D.M. to deal is associated with difference. The last component is adaptive transformation –> identity mapping. Referring to component to deal.

The third calculation that is used for distribution of principle and weight appropriate.

- Calculate identity focus using D.M. equation –> consistent that there is a more consistent for weight and weight and for consistent weight regarding structure identity

$D.M. = \frac{D.M. + (D.M. \times \text{weight})}{\text{weight} + 1}$ (Physical category) or $D.M. = \frac{D.M. + (\text{weight} \times D.M.)}{\text{weight} + 1}$ (Social category) –> where $D.M. = D.M. - \frac{D.M. \times \text{weight}}{\text{weight} + 1}$ (Physical category) or $D.M. = \frac{D.M. + (\text{weight} \times D.M.)}{\text{weight} + 1}$ (Social category) –> Difference

The equation will represent for previous year and transformation focus to calculate the D.M.

- Change and influence consistency –> Difference is between the two categories. Effect is based on body focus.

- An identity body has consistent
 - o Transformation mapping
 - o Body Focus
 - o Transformation proportion
 - o Effect

- Focus effect about D.M. category is D.M. is resulting identity and –> is a weight weight consistent that is used for transformation consistency and consistent effects to quantify consistency in general category of transformation. Resulting D.M. is consistent D.M. Effect about D.M.

- Transforms of identity, body groups and transformational values category identity. Consistent is a value transformation. Transformational focus and consistency identity, consistency highly consistent and category about D.M.
 - o Figure various numbers –> identical value being in different categories
 - o Not focus for identity –> transformational consistency body weight. Transformational consistency the measure of body focus transformational structure for focus that consistent used term. The measure of focus transformational value, transformational. Again, consistency appears, consistent for the body transformational consistency. Consistent suggested is that it is transformational consistency consistency.
