

The size of the lens opening (f/stop or aperture) that will be set the instant you take the picture is determined by the position of the lens opening ring. Just turn the ring until the desired lens opening number is opposite the index mark. The ring can be set on the detents (click-stops) or between numbers. The correct lens opening to use for different films and lighting conditions can be found by using the Argus SLR Exposure Meter or by consulting the film instruction sheet.

The lens opening-shutter speed combinations that will give the proper exposure are automatically calculated when using the SLR Exposure Meter. Film instruction sheets usually give just one combination. When you desire to use a faster (or slower) shutter speed, you must also change the lens opening. Increasing the speed by one number requires that you open the lens by one number. For example, if the exposure recommendation is 1/125 second at f/8, then you can also use 1/250 at f/5.6, 1/500 at f/4, or 1/1000 at f/2.8. To use 1/60 second, close the lens down to f/11.
