changes in other contexts gives reason to be positive about the potential for logistics improvements in the healthcare sector as well. From a logistics perspective patients pass different care functions units organisations and health facilities. It is assumed that logistics management knowledge applied in healthcare can lead to lower costs shorter waiting times better patient service shorter treatment times and increased capacity. This dissertation therefore presents an exploration of how logistics management theories can be operationalised in a healthcare context to understand care chain effectiveness. Theoretically the operationalisation is done by systems theory creating compatibility between logistics management theories and the healthcare context. As a first step features for a logistics system forms features for achieving care chain effectiveness. High care chain effectiveness is thus a desired condition and the care delivery system is the tool to achieve it. As the final step in the operationalisation the features for care chain effectiveness are in turn used to analyse today's practices. Empirically the research is based on qualitative data from a single case study with multiple units of analysis. It includes four care units at one of Sweden's university hospitals where the data is gathered through interviews insight into management systems and document analysis. One of the main results is the 21 areas identified for analysing today's practices by means of features for care chain effectiveness. Another main result is the four important concepts revealed through the operationalisation: Lead time the episode of care from order to delivery as the amount of time for patient cases between first contact with healthcare and the last Patient order fulfilment fulfilment of patients needs broken down into several smaller steps performed over time within different care units in one or several organisations consisting of five sub processes order handling diagnosis treatment follow up and discharge. True demand patients needs that is to be met and thus sets what care to deliver i.e. the production plan and the subordinate resource plan. System boundaries defines which care units to include when focusing on the care delivery system's performance as a whole and should be more important than the performance and productivity of each individual care unit. A number of direct suggestions for care chain improvement can also be found in the concluding remarks for example that objectives linked to economic influx or penalty narrow the system and that lead time data on an aggregated level is needed to cover episodes of care. The theoretical contribution of the dissertation is to the field of logistics management through the methodological development of using these theories in a new context. The managerial contribution is to healthcare managers through providing opportunities to improve care chains primarily by means of a greater understanding of care delivery systems.

I dina ögon Sarah Dessen, 2016-06-10 Sydneys bror Peyton sitter i fönget. Förldrarna gör allt för att hjälpa honom och Sydney som alltid har stått i skuggan av sin storebror blir mer och mer osynlig. Och hon känner skuld för det bara hon som tänker på vad Peyton har gjort att han faktiskt har begått ett brott och förstås är en annan människa. Livet för Sydney börjar i en ny skola tillsammans med Layla och Mac. De är inte alls som Sydneys gamla vänner från privatskolan och plötsligt känner hon sig sedd för första gången på väldigt länge. Hon dras in i deras värld och slipper de långa ensamma eftermiddagarna framför tv:n. Layla och Sydney blir snabbt bästa vänner och snart utvecklas hennes venskap med Mac till något mer.
