Green Voices Richard D. Besel, Bernard K. beyond the mere cataloguing of books In both disciplines researchers attempt to comprehend how social structures of power reputation and meaning permeate both the written record and the intellectual scaffolding through which scientific debate takes place Science in Print brings together scholars from the fields of print culture environmental history science and technology studies medical history and library and information studies This ambitious volume paints a rich picture of those tools and techniques of printing publishing and reading that shaped the ideas and practices that grew into modern science from the days of the Royal Society of London in the late 1600s to the beginning of the modern U S environmental movement in the early 1960s Hazardous Chemicals Ernst Homburg, Elisabeth Vaupel, 2019-08-01 Although poisonous substances have been a hazard for the whole of human history it is only with the development and large scale production of new chemical substances over the last two centuries that toxic manmade pollutants have become such a varied and widespread danger Covering a host of both notorious and little known chemicals the chapters in this collection investigate the emergence of specific toxic pathogenic carcinogenic and ecologically harmful chemicals as well as the scientific cultural and legislative responses they have prompted Each study situates chemical hazards in a long term and transnational framework and demonstrates the importance of considering both the natural and the social contexts in which their histories have unfolded
