

NARRATIVE WRITING RUBRIC

STRUCTURE
CC.4. W.3 Write narratives to develop real or imagined experiences or events using effective technique, descriptive details, and clear event sequences.
Lead CC.4. W.3.a Orient the reader by establishing a situation and introducing a narrator and/or characters; organize an event sequence that unfolds naturally.	Minimally , the writer wrote a beginning in which they showed what was happening and where.	Partially , the writer wrote a beginning in which they showed what was happening and where getting readers into the world of the story.	Generally , the writer wrote a beginning in which they showed what was happening and where getting readers into the world of the story.	Skilfully , the writer wrote a beginning in which they showed what was happening and where, but also some clue as to what would later happen.
Transitions CC.4. W.3.c Use a variety of transitional words and phrases to manage the sequence of events.	Minimally , the writer showed how much time went by with words and phrases that mark time.	Partially , the writer showed how much time went by with words and phrases that mark time.	Generally , the writer showed how much time went by with words and phrases that mark time, such as but not limited to just then and suddenly. It took more than things happened quickly, after a while and a little later, to show when a little time went by.	Skilfully , the writer used transitional phrases to show the passage of time in complicated ways, perhaps by showing things happening at the same time (meanwhile, at the same time) or flashbacks and flash-forward (early that morning, three hours later).
Final CC.4. W.3.e Provide a conclusion that follows from the narrated experiences or events.	Minimally , the writer wrote an ending that connected to the beginning or the middle of the story.	Partially , the writer wrote an ending that connected to the beginning or the middle of the story. The writer used action, dialogue, or feeling to bring her story to a close.	Generally , the writer wrote an ending that connected to the beginning or the middle of the story. The writer used action, dialogue, or feeling to bring her story to a close.	Skilfully , the writer wrote an ending that connected to the main part of the story. The character said, did, or realized something at the end that came from what happened in the story. The writer gave readers a sense of closure.

Featuring coverage on a broad range of topics such as collaborative writing, project-based learning, and writing and translation practices, this book is geared towards administrators, teachers, professors, academicians, practitioners, and researchers seeking current research on multilingual writing and pedagogical cooperation in virtual learning environments.

Centering Multilingual Learners and Countering

Raciolinguistic Ideologies in Teacher Education Jeff Bale, Shakina Rajendram, Katie Brubacher, Mama Adobea Nii

Owoo, Jennifer Burton, Wales Wong, Yiran Zhang, Elizabeth Jean Larson, Antoinette Gagné, Julie Kerekes, 2023-09-12. This book details a three-year multi-stranded study of teacher education programs that prepare future teachers to work with multilingual learners. The book examines how racism and linguisticism collaborate to shape the conditions under which teacher candidates learn how to teach. The analysis traces dynamic shifts in thinking and practice as participants reflected on their personal, professional, and academic experiences in relation to formal curriculum and assessment policies to interpret what it means to work with multilingual learners in the classroom. The book offers guiding principles above all learning from multilingual learners, not only about them, and presents a suite of teacher education practices to disrupt the interplay of language and race that so deeply shapes teacher candidate learning about multilingual learners.
