around power punishment and abandonment with specific reference to the experience of young women this book examines the particular challenges that young women face within the criminal justice system and traces their journeys in out and beyond confinement Common Scents Janice Carlisle,2004-02-19 Who smells Surveying nearly eighty novels written in the 1860s to answer that impolite question Common Scents provides a new reading of Victorian values particularly as they assess the relative merits of men and women spirit and matter In depictions of comparative encounters the commonplace meetings of everyday life such fiction often registers the inequalities that distinguish one individual from another by marking one of them with a smell In a surprisingly consistent fashion these references constitute what cultural anthropologists call an osmology a system of differentiations that reveals the status within a particular culture of the persons and things associated with specific odors Featuring often innocuous and even potentially pleasing aromas emanating from food flowers and certain kinds of labor novels of the 1860s array their characters into distinct categories finding in some rather than others olfactory proof of their materiality Central to this osmology is the difference between characters who give off odors and those who do not and this study draws upon the work of Victorian psychophysiologists and popular commentators on the senses to establish the subtlety with which fictional representations make that distinction By exploring the far reaching implications of this osmology in specific novels by Dickens Eliot Meredith Oliphant Trollope and Yonge Common Scents argues that the strikingly similar plots and characterizations typical of the 1860s responding as they do to the economic and political concerns of the decade reconfigure conventional understandings of the relations between men and women Determining who smells reveals what Victorian culture at its epitome takes for granted as a deeply embedded common sense the recognition of whose self evident truth seems to be as instinctive and automatic as a response to an odor The Traffic in Women Siriphon Sakhrōbanēk,Nataya Boonpakdee,Chutimā Čhanthathīrō,1997-11 Changes in the family Perceptions of Female Offenders, Vol. 2 Brenda Russell,Celia Torres,2023-11-27 This new edition is a nuanced exploration of female involvement in various crimes from delinquency domestic violence sexual assault and homicide that resonates with the pulse of contemporary society In an age where many events are tweeted and debated online this book delves into the intricate ways social media portrays female offenders and how this can distort public perceptions and effect legal outcomes Volume two includes recent research and theory examining how female perpetration is intricately related to gender roles that persist within the criminal justice system and often lead to gender disparities in treatment criminal justice response and sentencing and calls into question long held beliefs and systems that might not be as impartial as they appear The compelling nature of this volume addresses the complex relationship between trauma and offending and examines crucial subjects like partner violence homicide and the unique challenges faced by trans women within the criminal justice system and examines the myths associated with female offending and how that bleeds into criminal justice response It addresses theories that provide insight into female offending and sentencing and offers ways to generate gender inclusiveness This volume invites researchers practitioners and advocates for justice to join a vital conversation and develop a more informed and equitable criminal justice response Proceedings of the National Conference of Social Work at the ...
