the legacies of the dark past and dealing with a large group of victims is one of them Transitional justice mechanisms trying to cope with the past should not overlook the issue of reparation This research demonstrates how reparation for victims of gross and systematic human rights violations differs from reparation for isolated violations The Rwandan case study unveils the role of victim organisations in and the competition and politicisation of the reparation debate Although reparation for victims is a crucial element in transitional justice it becomes clear that the way in which the reparation debate unfolds does not necessarily contribute to the peaceful future of a post conflict society This study argues that remedying the process and debate of the search for reparation will lead to an improved and more constructive reparation policy

Heidy Rombouts is a legal and social scientist 1997 Master of Laws 1999 Master in Social and Political Sciences Catholic University of Leuven In 2004 she obtained a PhD degree in Social and Political Sciences at the University of Antwerp for her research on victim organisations and the politics of reparation For several years she has been conducting research on transitional justice human rights and post conflict situations including extensive field research in South Africa and Rwanda

Truth and Eros John Rajchman, 2013-01-11 In this reissued work first published in 1991 John Rajchman isolates the question of ethics in the work of Foucault and Lacan and explores its ramifications and implications for the present day He demonstrates that the question of ethics was at once the most difficult and the most intimate question for these two authors offering a complex point of intersection between them As such he argues that it belongs to the great tradition that is concerned with the passion or eros of philosophy and of its will to truth Truth and Eros suggests a way of reading Foucault and Lacan as philosophers who re eroticised the activity of thought in our time opening new and different spaces for thought and action new types of subjectivity
