Psychology without Foundations Steve D Brown, Paul Stenner, 2009-08-03 For many years for many people social psychology has been deemed a discipline in crisis This new book proposes a way out of the crisis by letting go of the idea that psychology needs new foundations or a new identity whether biological discursive or cognitive The psychological is not narrowly confined to any one aspect of human experience it is quite literally everywhere The book proposes a strong process oriented approach to the psychological which studies events or occasions Aspects of experience such as communication or embodiment are treated as thoroughly mediated the product of multiple intersecting relationships between the biological the psychic and the social The outcome is an image of a mobile reflexively founded discipline which follows the psychological wherever it takes us from the depths of embodiment to the complexities of modern global politics Media and the Restyling of Politics John Corner, Dick Pels, 2003-08-07 Within media research and cultural studies the mediation of politicians and the play off between versions of high and low politics are attracting increasing interest Media and the Restyling of Politics brings together the work of leading academics in media and cultural studies to pursue an agenda of research analysis and debate about the changing nature of political culture and its mediation The contributors question the ways in which emerging forms of political style relate not only to new conventions of celebrity and publicity but to ideas about representation citizenship and the democratic process Topics covered include celebrity politicians the marketing of politics identity and popular culture

Competence and Self-Care in Counselling and Psychotherapy Gerrie Hughes, 2014-02-24 What is it that makes a counsellor or psychotherapist competent In Competence and Self Care in Counselling and Psychotherapy Gerrie Hughes offers a framework for understanding what being competent means for individual practitioners both generally and in moment by moment work with clients Divided into two sections Part One The Competent Self and Part Two Care of the Self the book explores care and replenishment of the self as an essential requirement for maintaining competence The Competence Framework presented here suggests that the three elements of Practitioner Client and Context are essential factors for making good therapeutic choices as well as offering a structure for reflection either individually or in supervision The eight principles that elaborate on these elements provide a route to explore competence that is relevant for any theoretical orientation and appropriate for practitioners at any stage The reader is encouraged to make their own exploration of a number of factors that influence competence and to identify development of the self as both a necessary preparation for therapeutic work and as a continuing outcome of being a therapist In addition Hughes emphasises the importance of having a sound ethical framework and utilising professional structures as well as examining the contribution of supervision to the development and maintenance of competence This book is an ideal choice for counsellors psychotherapists supervisors and trainers who wish to maintain a robust standard of practice and for those employing them

senior lecturer at The Gestalt Centre London The New Schaff-Herzog Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge Johann Jakob Herzog, Albert Hauck, Samuel Macauley Jackson, Charles Colebrook Sherman, George William Gilmore, 1914 The Mind's Affective Life Gemma Fiumara Corradi, 2014-06-11 The Mind's Affective Life is a refreshing and innovative examination of the relationship between feeling and thinking Our thoughts and behaviour are shaped by both our emotions and reason yet until recently most of the literature analysing thought has concentrated largely on philosophical reasoning and neglected emotions This book is an original and provocative contribution to the rapidly growing literature on the neglected affective dimensions of modern thought The author draws on contemporary psychoanalysis philosophy feminist theory and recent innovations in neuroscience to argue that in order to understand thought we need to consider not only both emotional and rational aspects of thought but also the complex interactions between these different aspects Only through such a rich and complicated understanding of modern thought can we hope to avoid what the author identifies as a significant contemporary problem for individuals and cultures that is suppression or denial of intolerable states of feeling The Mind's Affective Life will appeal to and inspire students and practitioners of philosophy psychoanalysis psychotherapy and women's studies It will also be of great interest to anyone interested in the interaction of feeling and thinking
