Transformations in Social Science Research Methods during the COVID-19 Pandemic J. Michael Ryan, Valerie Visanich, Gaspar Brändle, 2024-07-11 This volume explores how researchers made innovative use of online technologies to innovate define and transform research methodologies in light of the varying impacts of the COVID 19 pandemic especially those related to the ability to conduct qualitative research The onset of the COVID 19 pandemic resulted in a radical shift in the way that people all over the world have been able to live work study and conduct their daily lives Academics and other professionals who routinely engage in research were no exception The sudden continued and uneven need for health mandates calling for physical distancing added a particular layer of complexity for those who used research methods that typically required face to face interactions Continued technological developments associated with the Internet had already given rise to ongoing debates on innovative methodological thinking and practices The COVID 19 pandemic has further accentuated how indispensable the internet has become for the private and public lives of those with access to it including for their employment education leisure and social interactions For those fortunate enough to have access to them communication software such as Zoom and Google Meet have also become indispensable digital resources for researchers seeking to continue conducting research during lockdowns and quarantines and beyond More than ever researchers are finding it useful even necessary to equip themselves with online research tools in order to be able to continue conducting their fieldwork Drawing on research and case studies from around the world this volume serves as a guidebook for those interested in attuning their own research methods to a world still struggling to grapple with the impacts of the COVID 19 pandemic

Gender-Inclusive Higher Education in Tanzania Susan P. Murphy, Perpetua John Urio, 2024-08-02 Whilst there is an extensive body of research exploring the barriers to gender equality and female empowerment in high income states there are far fewer systematic analyses within lower income settings This book draws on extensive empirical data to analyse gender mainstreaming and gender transformative actions in Tanzanian higher education The book maps the practical landscape of gender mainstreaming across 14 universities in Tanzania and the theoretical landscape of African theories of masculinities and femininities underpinning educational institutions and practices It then assesses the Gender Awareness and Transformation through Education project which was designed to support the development of gender expertise and capacities in research and education at one specific institution across both its administrative and academic units Current and future academics at Dar es Salaam University College of Education were trained in gender based research and education and a strategic plan was developed to guide in the establishment of a Gender Research Centre that will provide gender expertise in research and teaching to the College and over time to other HEIs nationally and regionally By bringing together real world insights from action based research the book demonstrates the impact of real time social change and gender transformation with implications both for Tanzania and beyond Bringing novel empirical insights and policy recommendations this book will be of interest to researchers and policy makers across the fields of gender studies education and African studies Tanzania National Bibliography, 2009
