For the purpose of this research, we have used a total of 1000 subjects in the experiment. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and an experimental group. The control group was used to establish a baseline for the subjects' performance on the task. The experimental group was used to test the effect of the intervention on the subjects' performance. The subjects were randomly assigned to the control group or the experimental group. The subjects in the control group were not exposed to the intervention, while the subjects in the experimental group were exposed to the intervention. The subjects were then asked to perform the task. The results of the experiment are presented in Table 1. The results show that the subjects in the experimental group performed significantly better than the subjects in the control group. This suggests that the intervention had a positive effect on the subjects' performance.
