Paleocurrents and Basin Analysis P. E. Potter, F. J. Pettijohn, 2012-12-06 The study of paleocurrents since 1963 is now a very routine part of sedimentology and more and more such studies are finding use in other fields Thus it seemed appropriate for us to review post 1963 developments and present them in a compact manner for the interested reader Instead of rewriting a second edition which thirteen years later we would organize in a completely different way we have brought each chapter up to date with new material up to 1976 A new update supplement has in this edition been inserted after each one of the original chapters We have stayed close to the original theme of paleocurrents how to measure them and how to use them to solve geological problems ranging in scale from the hand specimen to the sedimentary basin and beyond We have used many annotated references and tables to help present this information to the reader The reader will note that we have cited a few 1962 references publications that appeared too late to be cited in the original 1963 edition A few times we have also cited a reference which was included in the first edition These are marked with an asterisk and hence do not appear in the new lists of references We have been aided by many In Cincinnati WANDA OSBORNE and JEAN CARROL did typing and RICHARD SPOHN the University's geological librarian was very helpful in obtaining many references to the literature     The Syntax of Information-Structural Agreement Johannes Mursell, 2021-09-15 In this research monograph Johannes Mursell discusses the syntactic impact of information structural features on agreement. So far the syntactic contribution of this type of feature has mostly been reduced to movement of topics or foci clause initial position. Here the author looks at a different phenomenon syntactic agreement and how this process can be dependent on information structural properties. Based partly on original fieldwork from a typologically diverse set of languages including Tagalog, Swahili and Lavukaleve it is argued that for most areas for which information structural features have been discussed it is possible to find cases where these features influence phi feature agreement. The analysis is then extended to cases of Association with Focus which does not involve phi features but can still be accounted for with agreement of information structural features. The book achieves two main goals: first it provides a uniform analysis for different constructions in unrelated languages. Second it also gives a new argument that information structural features should be treated as genuine syntactic features.

The Effectiveness of Land Use Policies as a Strategy for Reducing Automobile Dependence Susan Handy, Kelly Clifton, Janice Fisher, 1998 The work described in this report represents an effort to better understand the link between urban form and travel behavior and to evaluate the potential effectiveness of land use policies as a strategy for reducing automobile dependence. This work builds on previous research in this area but attempts to go beyond it by exploring the motivations for travel as well as the patterns of travel. Travel surveys and focus groups were used to study the travel choices of residents of six case study neighborhoods in Austin, Texas. The results suggest that the role urban form plays in travel behavior is not entirely straightforward: sometimes influencing travel choices directly, sometimes indirectly, sometimes influencing choices in the short term, sometimes in the long term, and sometimes not having any measurable influence on choices at all. In the end it appears that certain land use policies can help to provide alternatives to driving but that the reduction in driving is likely to be small.
