relations Advanced Concepts in Photovoltaics Arthur J. Nozik, Gavin Conibeer, Matthew C Beard, 2014-07-10

Photovoltaic systems enable the sun's energy to be converted directly into electricity using semiconductor solar cells. The ultimate goal of photovoltaic research and development is to reduce the cost of solar power to reach or even become lower than the cost of electricity generated from fossil and nuclear fuels. The power conversion efficiency and the cost per unit area of the photovoltaic system are critical factors that determine the cost of photovoltaic electricity. Until recently, the power conversion efficiency of single junction photovoltaic cells has been limited to approximately 33%, the so-called Shockley-Queisser limit. This book presents the latest developments in photovoltaics which seek to either reach or surpass the Shockley-Queisser limit and to lower the cell cost per unit area. Progress toward this ultimate goal is presented for the three generations of photovoltaic cells: the 1st generation based on crystalline silicon semiconductors, the 2nd generation based on thin film silicon compound semiconductors, amorphous silicon and various mesoscopic structures, and the 3rd generation based on the unique properties of nanoscale materials, new inorganic and organic photoconversion materials, highly efficient multi-junction cells with low cost solar concentration and novel photovoltaic processes. The extent to which photovoltaic materials and processes can meet the expectations of efficient and cost-effective solar energy conversion to electricity is discussed. Written by an international team of expert contributors and with researchers in academia, national research laboratories and industry in mind, this book is a comprehensive guide to recent progress in photovoltaics and essential for any library or laboratory in the field.

Social Media at BBC News Valerie Belair-Gagnon, 2015-02-11. Since the emergence of social media in the journalistic landscape, the BBC has sought to produce reporting more connected to its audience while retaining its authority as a public broadcaster in crisis reporting. Using empirical analysis of crisis news production at the BBC, this book shows that the emergence of social media at the BBC and the need to manage this kind of material led to a new media logic in which tech-savvy journalists take on a new centrality in the newsroom. In this changed context, the politico-economic and socio-cultural logic have led to a more connected newsroom involving this new breed of journalists and BBC audience. This examination of news production events shows that in the midst of transformations in journalistic practices and norms, including newsgathering, sourcing, distribution and impartiality, the BBC has reasserted its authority as a public broadcaster.
